Suits and Coats of the Better Kind

If you will step into our suit and coat department and look at the garments being shown there you will understand why many people who want suits and coats of the better kind come to this store. If you will take one of our garments and turn it inside out, you will find there is as much on the inside as the outside. We stand for all the best that can be put into a garment in the way of linings and interlinings, for there is where the real test of the garment is made. Some people want all the money put on the outside for show, but real well dressed people want their clothes made up in good materials, well tailored, the best linings, and neat but not flashy trimmings.

There is where we shine, not in cheap braid and flashy trimmings, but in quality of cloth, good silk linings, fine workmanship and garments that look nice and stay nice. That is why "Ogdens" is known as the house of quality. And the price too is often as low here as you pay elsewhere for the other kind.

Dependable Furs

In buying Furs, most people are compelled to depend on just what the merchant tells them about the garment, and take his word for it that what he says is right. Not every man who handles furs knows very much about this line, very often no more than the customer. When you buy these goods you usually go to some one in whom you have confidence, some one whom you know will tell you the truth. Sometimes the merchant is honest in what he tells you, but is deceived himself in the merchandise. When this occurs, he must need go back to the man who made the goods for relief. When you buy furs here we try to tell you just what is right, and if we find we are deceived, we have a maker back of us who is always ready to make good any just claims. With eighteen years of experience in buying and selling these garments to hundreds of satisfied customers, we feel that in coming here you are coming to a store as well equipped to take care of your wants as any concern in the country. We are showing a very strong line in all the leading furs of the season.

FALL AND WINTER UNDERWEAR FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN

For many years we have bought and sold a line of knit underwear for women and children that is as well known to the trade in our city as any line manufactured. This is the celebrated "Harvard Mills" line known all over the land as a garment that wears and that is comfortable. The peculiar weave of this brand of underwear, its elasticity, the absence of rough seams, the soft texture of the material, makes it so comfortable and so strong and durable that to wear it once means to wear it for all time.

We have this line in many shapes, both two piece and union suits, in cotton, wool and cotton and silk and cotton, in all sizes to fit any form.

When in the store, stop at the underwear counter and ask to see some of these nice garments. You will be surprised at how little you will have to pay to get just the garment you have been looking for, and have not found because you failed to come where the right kind is kept. If you want underwear for the little folk, just remember we are perhaps better equipped to sell you what you want for the boys and girls than any other store in this part of the country.

We carry a line of vests and bands for infants, that is found in no other store in this part of West Virginia, and is regarded by authority on infants underwear to be the best line manufactured. All sizes and all weights in the infants' goods, cotton, wool and cotton, silk and cotton. Ask to see this line at the knit underwear department on main floor.

GLOVES, HANDKERCHIEFS, HOSIERY AND NECKWEAR

Many stores buy gloves from half a dozen lines and never have the same kind of glove twice. This is a mistake that many a merchant has made, buying this and that brand because it may be a little less in price. When you buy a pair of gloves here you can depend on it that you will get a brand that is well known and that has been tried. The best evidence is the test of wear. Ask to see our gloves when in the store.

If you have never bought handkerchiefs here, you have missed seeing a wonderful line. You will find here right now the best line of handkerchiefs that this town has ever seen. Of course we have finer goods, but you will pay 50 cents many times for handkerchiefs no better than many we are selling at 25 cents. Every one pure linen, and hand embroidered, if you have any doubts, we stand ready to prove it.

The lines of hosiery carried by this store are too well known throughout this country to need any further comment. Let us say this much that we are well equipped to care for you in all the numbers you have been using. We have many dozens of hosiery that was bought at the old prices and are being sold the same way. Our line of stockings for boys and girls is full and complete and the prices are still 25 cents a pair. Take advantage of these old prices today and fit out the little folk for winter.

Neckwear is prettier this season than ever before. The prevailing styles of suits call for large collars, and in some instances collar and cuff sets. If you haven't found just what you want in neckwear, we know you will find it here for we have that something different you have been looking for. Take a glance over this line at the neckwear counter, near the entrance of the store. Many novelties you have never seen, fresh and new from the maker.

SOMETHING NEW IN TABLE FURNISHINGS

By Jane Stone

Possibly no department is visited with as much interest as that which contains the table service. A young housekeeper is invariably enthusiastic about the table equipment and most always is on the alert to add "something new."

This season our manufacturers have exerted themselves to the utmost to show that we can produce and even out rival wares which we have been accustomed to welcome from foreign shores.

"The flowers that bloom in the spring" are just as vivid on our china and probably more lasting than those which nature produces.

At really extraordinary prices you can purchase a complete set of American porcelain in lovely bright colors that combine distinction and originality of design are reproductions of old patterns. A tea set of American porcelain in Spode Chelsea design of yellow and pink flowers is priced so cheap that even a housekeeper of long experience is surprised.

To know whether a piece is really china or porcelain, glance at the under side of the cup or plate. If it shows a light brown rim, it is china, but if it is pure white it is porcelain.

A dinner service of English china is banded with turquoise and gold. The same may be had in ivory color and gold.

A charming decoration of a Wedgewood set is old fashioned pieces of softest blue and red, with foliage for a central design with a white fluted border striped in green.

Individual breakfast sets sure to tempt the most obstinate appetite have a faint basket weave border in blue and white with pink rosebuds edged in black.

The next best thing to a silver service is one of crusted silver and china, closely resembling hammered silver. This does not tarnish and has been received with great eclat.

There is a great vogue for Japanese dinnerware, and it is really remarkable the vast array that is exhibited. A Japanese set with raised enamel decoration of flowers and birds is really a worth-while possession of the housewife who loves the artistic.

Japan relish sets in different colors, with four compartments, give a brilliant touch to the table. Mayonnaise bowls and spoons to match come in the same color.

Cream soups of Royal Doulton are new comers in the china field. They are like huge bouillon cups with handles.

Sandwich plates of Italian china have a champagne colored background and an all-over Renaissance conventional pattern in white. It would seem as if there were as many varieties of sandwich plates as there are sandwiches.

A combination asparagus and dressing plate for individual service is a novelty indeed, and besides its purpose is of really lovely decorated china.

The art of making glass dates back to about 1500 B. C. in Egypt. Its manufacture has continued through the ages and in each country native characteristics have been developed and each successive period has added variety and design. Today the American glass ranks with the best productions of other countries, and "Made in America" glass admits of no rival.

Fruits occupy first place in table decorations and there are many examples of glassware which show fruits and flowers to colorful advantage. Glasses and decanters should depend on the contents for their colors. The best ones are clear ones of crystal purity.

Worthy of admiration also is the new glassware which practically matches some of the dinner services in design.

Black finger bowls, with handles of colored pearls of natural colors are among the latest fads.

Some of the newest glass is covered with a design of flowers. These are cut into the glass and left unpolished so that the effect is one of novel interest.

The bubble glass of Venice is more than a fad, and there are many original and reproduced specimens. Covered glass bowls with fruit decorations are used in pairs for the sideboard or central table decorations.

A centerpiece recently used with good effect was of black and white striped glass, holding an electric light globe inside of it. The rays of light strike through the colored glass. Grapes, lemons and green leaves with which the top is piled.

Sherbet glasses for the woman who loves deep color effects are glorious in a deep royal purple.

Metal water carriers, complete with six tumblers, are tinted in gray, green or neutral tints, the glasses have decorations in floral design.

Two, three and four compartment relish dishes in engraved rock crystal are among the new forms presented, and certainly make an appeal to the hostess who is looking for "something different" for the table.

For the center of the table there is a Tiffany opal glass bowl to hold flowers; rising from the center is a veritable mushroom lamp with an electric bulb.

"Some like it hot—some like it cold," but for those who like hot rolls the odd shaped silver dishes with open work border fitted with silver handles. A dollie embroidered with hot rolls readily tells the purpose.

For serving cake, there is an engraved glass tray with silver rim which raises it a few inches from the table. The edging is on the underneath side so that when it is inverted it may be used as a serving tray. A silver cake knife accompanies the dish.

Of irresistible appeal for those to whom price is no object are silver service plates measuring from 10 1/2 to 11 1/2 inches. One service has an Adams design, while another is a reproduction of antique Dutch silver.

An engraved and silver lemon tray with fork of silver is a requisite of the tea table. Great care should be exercised in the selection of silver, so it will harmonize with the other table fittings as to bring all in a happy unity.

Of glass and silver plate there is an egg service consisting of salt and pepper shakers, spoon and glass, which after once used is termed a necessity. Sheffield plate in hammered silver design may be had in all the wanted pieces for table service.
